REPUBLICAN CITY TICKET.

FOR MAYOR, B. F. CALDWELL FOR CITY SERGEANT THOS. D. BENNETT. FOR CITY CLERK, CHAS E. DANNENBERG, FOR WHARF MASTER, J. W. NORRINGTON,

The Old Year and the New.

The year just closed was more than ordinarily fruitful in sensational incidents. It opened, as the preceding year had closed, with thousands of willing men and women out of employment, in pressing want and clamoring for something to do. Coxey rose up, got hearers for his silly talk, enlisted followers and imitators and plagued the country with the strolling bands of Debs tried something novel in the way of rebellion and moved the general government to the vigorous and decisive assertion of its power to protect inter-state commerce against the Debs sort of thing. Thanks to the same movement everybody understands now that to interfere with the operation of a railroad in the hands of a receiver appointed by a court of the United States is contempt of court and will be punished as such.

A new tariff bill was passed and put in operation, and soon after that the party in power got such a drubbing as no other party has had in the history of this country. Owing to the tariff agitation and legislation the revenues of the country have gone steadily behind. The government has made two loans of $50,-000,000 each and will be compelled to try another.

The general business of the year has not been good, but the splendid triumph of the party of protection has restored confidence to a degree and there is better promise for the new year. There will be no boom, but there is fair prospect of a general improvement of conditions, still on the basis of low prices and low wages.

The country has made up its mind to have courage and to do as well as it can until it shall have a chance to make a complete change at Washington. The outlook might be better, but it is some comfort to know that it is better than it was at the opening of last year.

HAPPY NEW YEAR and many happy

Judge Jordan Gives Way to Judge Hugus.
In retiring from the bench of the criminal court of Ohio county Judge Jordan leaves behind an excellent record and takes with him the good opinion and the best wishes of all good citizens. He has administered the office with unvarying courage, intelligence and justice. He has made his court feared by the evil-doer and respected by the whole community. It was his misfortune to come again before the people in a landslide year when in this locality there was no chance for a man on the Democratic ticket. His successful opponent, Judge Hugus, is a man of the highest character, from whom the people expect the very best things, and they are not likely to be disappointed. Judge Hugus has the respect and confidence of the community and will show himself entitled to both.

THERE is no use in reminding you to write it 1895. You will have to become accustomed to the new before you lay aside the old.

The Treasury's Needs.

Treasury receipts for the month just closed were nearly $6,000,000 short of expenditures, and for the fiscal year thus far they are more than $28,000,000 short. Things have been kept moving by drawing on receipts of bonds placed ostensibly to sustain the gold reserve.

Customs receipts are not coming up to the expectation of the advocates of the new tariff bill. They will doubtless increase, but not enough in the near future to meet treasury requirements. Nor is it at all certain that the income tax will render the service that has been looked for. It may not go into operation at all, for the appropriation to put it into effect Is to be resisted stoutly in the senate and may not get through.

In view of the fact that the treasury must have money, and since the administration has had an intimation that another loan may not go so well as the Azel Ford will be the member from two that have been floated, there is a Raieigh county as soon as the judicial another loan may not go so well as the casting about for means to raise more revenue. The leaders in the house are said to have fixed on beer as an article that can stand more taxation. It is ontimated that a dollar a barrel would yield more than $30,000,000 of revenue.

This expedient was suggested before the Wilson bill was introduced and while it was being licked into shape, but the Democratic statesmen were afraid of the political results, and would not take hold in that place. We shall now see whether they have become sufficiently desperate to try it now.

Tun year 1894 goes into history as the year in which West Virginia cut loose from the Democratic party and bade it a long farewell. For this 1894 shall ever be held in kindly remembrance.

The University and the State Schools. President Reynolds, of the university, has given some strong reasons why the public schools of the state and the university should be brought into closer touch. To be what it should be the system of free schools in the state should begin with the first step in primary education and end with graduation from Properly arranged, such a system would be a gain to the pupil at every step, even though he took but part of the full course. The gain to those attending the university would be very great, for it would probably do away with the preparatory department, and allow the cost of that department to be added to the real university work. If the system were properly graded and nicely related in all its parts there would be no need of a preparatory department in the university.

The university has been hampered in a good many ways, and it spite of all obstacles it has done and is doing good work. It can do better work with intelligent action by the legislature, and this the INTELLIGENCER hopes may be accorded it.

COLONEL BRECKINGIDGE is having hard sledding on the lecture platform. He does not draw well and a rapacious lawver is on his trail with a keen scent. Willie talks, but the box receipts are not for him.

The Police and Politics.

In his interesting testimony before the Lexow committee, the superintendent of the New York police force said that the department could not be brought to the highest efficiency so long as it is in politics. This is obviously true now if it never was before, yet the city of New York is not guilty of the sublime folly of choosing a head of its police force by popular election.

This is done in few cities, but Wheeling does it with results not the best. The chief of police, having been elected in this way, selects his men from those who have "legged" for him, and who are expected to do more of the same kind of work for his re-election. The chief of police should be removed from the popular favor and caprice, and so with the men under him.

The fact is that policemen and mem bers of the fire department should not owe their places to politics. They should be appointed and permitted to serve during good behavior and acceptable service. To this we shall come in Wheeling unless Wheeling is to fall behind the procession.

SUPERINTENDENT BYRNES corrects his statement before the Lexow committee to say that in the discharge of his duties he was not hampered by the Republican commissioners. It was the other fellows who blocked the way. This is comforting.

A COMPETENT LEGISLATURE.

No Fears That the Body Will Over-reach Itself-The Republican Majority.

Charleston Evening Mail. The fears and anxiety shown in certain quarters that the approaching Republican legislature may over-reach itself and onter into the consideration and final passage of wholesale legislation which might result in an injury to the state and to the future prospects of the party is entirely without cause. There has never been a legislature chosen of more mature and competent chosen of more mature and competent men than the body which is to meet here on the 0th of January, 1895. With-out particularizing with reference to the minority we can point with pride to the selection of such men as Hon. A. B. Clark, of Upshur county, who has served in former sessions and always rated a conservative, prudent and wise legislator; Hon. George F. Evans, of Berkeley, one of the ablest men in the state, well posted as to our needs and Berkeley, one of the ablest men in the state, well posted as to our needs and demands, a ready and fluent speaker and splendidly equipped by training to become a leader; Hon. A. W. Cook, of the McDowell-Wyoming district, who has represented his constituency with credit in former sessions of the legislature, and who comes with mature experience. Then there is Judge R. F. Fleming, of Jackson county, mature in jurisprudence and with n mature in jurisprudence and with n splendidly equipped mind, he ranks with the ablest members of the bar of the state. In Kanawha we send three gentlemen who have served in the legiswith the abes memors of the oar of the state. In Kanawha we send three gentlemen who have sorved in the legislature in former years, Itons. Lewis A. Martin, W. S. Edwards and W. H. H. Tolor. Martin and Edwards are lawyers of splendid equipment and mature experience. Tolor is one of the the most intelligent representatives of the working class over chosen to represent them. His record is that of a careful, consistent and painstaking legislator, and there is nothing to fear from him in the future. Hon. P. F. Jones, the fourth member from Kanawha, represents a class of young, active and, progressive statesmanship that must be conservative to be trusted with future duties, and his record will be the equal in credit marks to any on the roll. Mason county returns H. S. Greer, whose record in the last session was that of an able and thoughtful lawmaker, and whose voice and vote was always for the best interests of the state. Ohio county sends Hon. A. R. Campbell, who has had experience in the upper branch of the legislature and is a wide-make and well equipped business man; and she also rights an iniquity of the last body by returning Hon. S. G. Smith, who was, elected in 1892, but deprived of his place by Democratic rascallty and thus prevented from proving his usefulness; basides choosing Hons. Abram Stamm and J. C. Brady, two splendid representatives of Wheeling's business interests. Hon. Azel Ford will be the member from Raleigh county as soon as the judicial machinery of the body can get at the merits of the case and hoists out the fraudulent member, Prince. Mr. Ford's ability is well known, and his influence for good will be felt. Ritchie county sends Hon. P. W. Morris, brainy, fearless and progressive, who, as a senator, was strong in personality as well as for the right. Wood county reflects credit upon herself by sending Hon. S. T. Stapleton, whose conservative course in the last legislature won for him golden opinions from all. These with such men as Abram Pearson, of Wirt, J. G. Smith, of Wayne, R. N. Corbett and J. C. Kimes, of Wood, S. G. Pyle, of Tyler, F. B. Blue, of Taylor, M. J. Cook, of Summers, C. II. Corder, of Barbour county, all representative men of the communities in which they of Barbour county, all representative men of the communities in which they live, leads us to the conclusion that either business or political mistakes in the coming session of the legislature in the lower branch will be few and far be-

One of Kanawha's best known and most distinguished members of the next legislature is Colonel L. A. Martin. EX-SPEAKER REED On the Republican Victory in November.

What Led to It. From "Historic Political Upheavat," by Thomas B. Reed in North American Review.

In a real republic, where the will of the people is really recorded as expressed, there can be no tyranny. Our foreod, there can be no tyranny. Our fore-fathers used to say that where annual elections leave off, tyranny begins. Surely even in these degenerate days we may say that where the control of the machinery of government is in the hands of men who are not subject to popular will in free and fair elections, tyranny has already begun. No wonder such men repealed all election laws and sought to sanction their own existence by prolonging the possibilities of their kind. But wrong is never so weak as in its hour of triumph. The very reneal of all the safeguards thrown around the ballot-box will awaken the public attention and stir the public heart. Already the Atlanta Constitution is exposing the frauds in its own state of Georgia, one of the most thrifty of the southern states, where least of all fraudulent elections can be justified by the fear of negro domination. If the partisans in Tennessee should cheat Henry Clay Evans out of his gubernatorial chair so fairly won, that nefarious success will be but the beginning of rain. No republic can be based on fraud. This is beginning to be seen even in those states where bringing the will of the voter to manght has become a system. At the signs of a change to honest elections all good men rejoice. The warning which was given by the elecfathers used to say that where annual the voter to maight has become a system. At the signs of a change to honest elections all good men rejoice. The warning which was given by the elections in the east and in the west, the elections in the east and in the west, the elections of 1893, though they included all the great states,—those heretofore Democratic as well as those who had voted the Republican ticket in 1892,—was not in the least heeded. Drunk with the victory of 1892 and out of touch with the real people of the country, the leaders of the party in power went on in the house of representatives to lay up wrath against the day of wrath. Into details it is not worth while to go. That would be to dig up the buried where it is only needful to point to their last resting-place. The senate, which only had a small majority, under the leadership of the senators from Maryland, Onio and New Jersey, while it did not exhibit too much sense, certainly showed a valuable and striking contanst to the executive and the house, and probably saved their party from annihilation. This however, was ing containst to the executive and the house, and probably eaved their party from annibilation. This, however, was larvely due to the people, who made themselves heard there when they failed in the popular branch. Then came the elections of last November, so overwhelming and so crushing that they seem to have settled the future of this country for many years. country for many years.

MY VISION.

Last night the belis were sadly tolling The old year out, the new year in. While in the moonlight slowly strolling I dreamed of him, and only him.

I thought I heard the music pealing. I saw the ball-room bright and gay, I heard the laughter 'round me stealing, And would not turn my head away.

And the many merry dances, I saw the form of one I love; I smiled to see his happy glances, Then turned my head to heaven above.

The night was cold—the stars were shining,
The bells' sad tolling died away—
While from the clouds the silver lining
Burst forth upon the New Year's day,
